

In addition to suggesting these possible research topics, this paper has and the Van Velsen (1960) thesis that the negative effects of labor migration social structures have enabled change to take place without totally disrupting traditional life. While not denying that many families suffered from the of husbands and fathers, it seems that missionary objections to emigration motivated partly by the necessity to preserve an inexpensive labor supply in the protectorate. Migrant labor agreements with neighboring countries and contracturements with recruiting companies have ameliorated the worst effects of on local life by insisting on free round-trip transportation, compulsory and deductions from wages for support of the family back home.

REFERENCES CITED

- William J. The Economy of British Central Africa: A Case Study of Economic Development in a Dualistic Society. Stanford, Calif.: Stanford University Press 1961.
- G. N. Nyasaland Natives in the Union of South Africa. Zomba: Government Printer, 1940.
- M. L. "The Political Economy of Independent Agriculture in Colonial Malawi:
 The Great War to the Great Depression." Journal of Social Science (University of Malawi), Vol. I (1972).
- Colonial Office. Nyasaland Correspondence, 1904-1946. C.O. 525.
 Foreign Office. Nyasaland Correspondence, 1897-1903. F.O. 2.
- Ronald E. Work, Exchange and Leadership: The Mobilization of Agricultural Labor Among the Tumbuka of the Henga Valley. Ph.D. dissertation, Columbia University, 1969.
- Arthur and P. D. Henderson. Nyasaland, The Economics of Federation.
 Oxford: Basil Blackwood, 1960.
- Reviews conducted in Blantyre, Malawi, December 1972.
- Ministry of External Affairs. Malawi Treaty Series. Edition IV. Zomba:
 Government Printer, 1967.
- Ministry of Labour. Report. Zomba: Government Printer, 1962 and 1967.
- National Statistical Office. Malawi Population Census, 1966: Final Report. Zomba: Government Printer, 1970.
- M. G. Sorcery in Its Social Setting: A Study of the Northern Rhodesian Cewa. Manchester: Manchester University Press, 1965.
- Protectorate. Report of the Committee on Emigrant Labour. (The Travers-Lacey Report). Zomba: Government Printer, 1936.